

Name: _____ () Class: _____ Date: _____

Unit 2 Study and school life

Relative clauses (Set A)

Chris has written an article about a funfair at Victoria Park, but he is not sure about the use of defining and non-defining relative clauses. Help him complete the article by forming relative clauses with the words in brackets. Add a suitable relative pronoun before each clause.

Funfair at Victoria Park

Victoria Park buzzed with excitement as the English Council held a funfair there last Saturday, (1) _____ (schools just started their summer holiday). The event, (2) _____ (is organized every year), aims to promote Western culture and the learning of English in the community.

Students from around 50 schools set up booths (3) _____ (provided a variety of games), such as bingo, scrabble and tongue twisters. The most popular booth was the 'Twist your tongue' booth. Participants (4) _____ (were able to finish saying each string of words within 10 seconds) would be given prizes. Another popular place in the funfair was English café, (5) _____ (people could get some delicious refreshments).

All the booths were designed by the students, (6) _____ (creativity amazed everyone). All the booths, (7) _____ (were also hot spots for photo-taking), used mainly recycled materials such as plastic bottles and magazine paper.

The highlight of the day was a short English play (8) _____ (was performed by the students of Chan's Memorial School). The performance was mesmerizing. The audience gave a standing ovation at the end of the play.

Overall, the funfair was a great success. The English Council will hold another one at Tai Po Waterfront Park this Saturday. Don't miss it!

Name: _____ () Class: _____ Date: _____

Unit 2 Study and school life

Relative clauses (Set B)

Chris has written an article about a funfair at Victoria Park, but he is not sure about the use of defining and non-defining relative clauses. Help him complete the article by forming relative clauses in the box. Add commas and suitable relative pronouns where appropriate.

- creativity amazed everyone
- is organized every year
- people could get some delicious refreshments
- provided a variety of games
- schools just started their summer holiday
- was performed by the students of Chan's Memorial School
- were able to finish saying each string of words within 10 seconds
- were also hot spots for photo-taking

Victoria Park buzzed with excitement as the English Council held a funfair there last Saturday, (1) _____. The event, (2) _____, aims to promote Western culture and the learning of English in the community.

Students from around 50 schools set up booths (3) _____, such as bingo, scrabble and tongue twisters. The most popular booth was the 'Twist your tongue' booth. Participants (4) _____ would be given prizes. Another popular place in the funfair was English café, (5) _____.

All the booths were designed by the students, (6) _____. All the booths, (7) _____, used mainly recycled materials such as plastic bottles and magazine paper.

The highlight of the day was a short English play (8) _____. The performance was mesmerizing. The audience gave a standing ovation at the end of the play.

Overall, the funfair was a great success. The English Council is holding another one at Tai Po Waterfront Park this Saturday. Don't miss it!

Name: _____ () Class: _____ Date: _____

Unit 2 Study and school life

Relative clauses (Set A)

Chris has written an article about a funfair at Victoria Park, but he is not sure about the use of defining and non-defining relative clauses. Help him complete the article by forming relative clauses with the words in brackets. Add a suitable relative pronoun before each clause.

Funfair at Victoria Park

Victoria Park buzzed with excitement as the English Council held a funfair there last Saturday, (1) when schools just started their summer holiday (schools just started their summer holiday). The event, (2) which is organized every year (is organized every year), aims to promote Western culture and the learning of English in the community.

Students from around 50 schools set up booths (3) which provided a variety of games (provided a variety of games), such as bingo, scrabble and tongue twisters. The most popular booth was the 'Twist your tongue' booth. Participants (4) who were able to finish saying each string of words within 10 seconds (were able to finish saying each string of words within 10 seconds) would be given prizes. Another popular place in the funfair was English café, (5) where people could get some delicious refreshments (people could get some delicious refreshments).

All the booths were designed by the students, (6) whose creativity amazed everyone (creativity amazed everyone). All the booths, (7) which were also hot spots for photo-taking (were also hot spots for photo-taking), used mainly recycled materials such as plastic bottles and magazine paper.

The highlight of the day was a short English play (8) which was performed by the students of Chan's Memorial School (was performed by the students of Chan's Memorial School). The performance was mesmerizing. The audience gave a standing ovation at the end of the play.

Overall, the funfair was a great success. The English Council is holding another one at Tai Po Waterfront Park this Saturday. Don't miss it!

Name: _____ () Class: _____ Date: _____

Unit 2 Study and school lifeRelative clauses (Set B)

Chris has written an article about a funfair at Victoria Park, but he is not sure about the use of defining and non-defining relative clauses. Help him complete the article by forming relative clauses in the box. Add commas and suitable relative pronouns where appropriate.

- creativity amazed everyone
- is organized every year
- people could get some delicious refreshments
- provided a variety of games
- schools just started their summer holiday
- was performed by the students of Chan's Memorial School
- were able to finish saying each string of words within 10 seconds
- were also hot spots for photo-taking

Victoria Park buzzed with excitement as the English Council held a funfair there last Saturday, (1) when schools just started their summer holiday. The event, (2) which is organized every year, aims to promote Western culture and the learning of English in the community.

Students from around 50 schools set up booths (3) which provided a variety of games, such as bingo, scrabble and tongue twisters. The most popular booth was the 'Twist your tongue' booth. Participants (4) who were able to finish saying each string of words within 10 seconds would be given prizes. Another popular place in the funfair was English café, (5) where people could get some delicious refreshments.

All the booths were designed by the students, (6) whose creativity amazed everyone. All the booths, (7) which were also hot spots for photo-taking, used mainly recycled materials such as plastic bottles and magazine paper.

The highlight of the day was a short English play (8) which was performed by the students of Chan's Memorial School. The performance was mesmerizing. The audience gave a standing ovation at the end of the play.

Overall, the funfair was a great success. The English Council is holding another one at Tai Po Waterfront Park this Saturday. Don't miss it!